Definitions:

Equality

Equality enables us to create a fairer environment where everyone can participate and has the opportunity to fulfil their potential. Equality is backed by Equality Act 2010, which seeks to address unfair treatment, discrimination, harassment, and victimisation, to advance equality of opportunity, and to foster good relations between people who share a protected characteristic and those who do not.

Diversity

Diversity is about recognising and valuing difference in its broadest sense. It is about creating a culture and practices that recognise, respect, value, and embrace difference for the benefit of all.

Inclusion

Inclusion refers to an individual's experience within the College and wider community, and the extent to which they feel valued and included.

Our commitment to staff:

- To strive to employ a diverse workforce which reflects the community in which we operate and the learner population.
- To respect and celebrate individual differences and recognise and value the roles of all our staff, encouraging them to participate and lead in college activities.
- To ensure training, development and progression opportunities are available to all staff.
- To keep all our employment policies, procedures and practices under review to ensure fairness.
- To make clear our expectations and commitment to equality and diversity during recruitment, selection and induction.
- To provide ongoing training in equality and diversity in order to help staff to recognise and embed diversity and challenge all forms of discrimination.

- To foster a working environment that promotes dignity and respect to all and aims to eliminate all forms of intimidation, bullying and harassment.
- Wherever practicable and operationally possible, to provide reasonable adjustments for staff who are or who become disabled.
- To avoid unlawful discrimination in all aspects of employment.
- To ensure that decisions on selection, promotion, training and career management are made on merit.
- To ensure that decisions on all aspects of employment are made fairly and objectively, including pay and benefits, disciplinary action, grievances, and termination of employment.

Our commitment to learners:

- To make clear our expectations and commitment to equality and diversity in our marketing materials and events, during the admissions process and during induction.
- To actively encourage equality and diversity through the teaching, learning and assessment process, via tutorial activities, learning materials, use of inclusive language, college-wide events etc.
- To provide an inclusive training and learning environment that is tailored to the individual and takes account of individual need and cultural backgrounds.
- To embed equality and diversity in curriculum planning and design.
- To provide additional learning support tailored to individual needs for learners who require this to support their learning and progression.
- To make reasonable adjustments to physical premises and equipment and provide special aids where possible to assist learners with disabilities.
- For FE / HE programmes, to select students on merit and without regard to any protected characteristic, providing they can complete a physically demanding specialised dance training course of 3 years duration followed by reasonable expectations of a professional performance career in dance.

Our commitment to service users:

- To ensure our services are accessible to as wide a group of potential users as possible.
- To provide clear and meaningful information about our services.
- To monitor take up and satisfaction of services to ensure that everyone who uses our services and/or facilities can participate fully and to the best of their potential.

Publicity and Promotions:

Bird College will work to ensure that our publicity and promotion procedures encourage applicants from under-represented groups. The College will undertake thorough scrutiny of publicity, promotion materials and marketing related activities to ensure that brochures, advertisements, applications documents, and display resources reflect the diversity of students at the College. This means materials do not contain socially, racially biased, or stereotypical terminology, information or illustrations which flout this policy.

Tackling Discrimination:

We will

- Actively challenge and tackle all forms of prejudice, discrimination, and stereotypical attitudes.
- Deal with allegations of discrimination, harassment, bullying and victimisation sensitively and investigate fairly and thoroughly.
- Treat any form of discrimination, harassment, bullying or victimisation carried out by an individual as a disciplinary matter, under the college's disciplinary procedure. Discrimination, harassment, bullying or victimisation may constitute gross misconduct and could lead to dismissal without notice.
- Comply fully with our legal responsibilities as an employer and provider of education and other services, including the Public Sector Equality Duty where appropriate.

Bird Colleges Equity and Inclusion Disclosure Form allows students, staff and external visitors to disclose incidents of inappropriate discriminatory behaviour (See Appendix A).

Legal compliance: Equality Act 2010:

The Equality Act 2010 replaced a series of previous anti-discrimination legislation with a single act, removing inconsistencies and making it clearer to understand and fulfil.

The nine main pieces of legislation which were merged are:

- the Equal Pay Act 1970
- the Sex Discrimination Act 1975
- the Race Relations Act 1976
- the Disability Discrimination Act 1995
- the Employment Equality (Religion or Belief) Regulations 2003
- the Employment Equality (Sexual Orientation) Regulations 2003
- the Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006
- the Equality Act 2006, Part 2
- the Equality Act (Sexual Orientation) Regulations 2007

Public bodies are required to publish significant, proportionate information demonstrating their fulfilment with the Equality Act and to set themselves specific, quantifiable equality objectives. The three main aims of the Equality Act are:

- to eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment and abuse and any other conduct prohibited by the Act.

- advance equality of opportunity between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it.
- foster good relations between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it.

These are explained in Appendix B alongside the Colleges specific actions to tackle discrimination.

The categories of people covered by the further and higher education institution provisions are:

- Prospective students (in relation to admissions arrangements).
- Students at the institution (including those absent or temporarily excluded).
- Former students (if there is a continuing relationship based on them having been a student at the institution).
- Disabled people who are not students at the institution but who hold or have applied for qualifications conferred by the institution.

If a person believes that they have been discriminated against, harassed, or victimised by the College, they can make a claim under the Equality Act.

Types of unlawful discrimination:

The Act also recognises the following types of discrimination:

- Direct discrimination, including by association and perception
- Indirect discrimination
- Harassment
- Victimisation
- Discrimination arising from disability

These are explained in Appendix C.

Appendix C:

There are four main types of discrimination. What is discrimination? | Equality and Human Rights Commission \(equalityhumanrights.com\)

Direct discrimination

This means treating one person worse than another person because of a protected characteristic. For example, a promotion comes up at work. The employer believes that people's memories get worse as they get older so doesn't tell one of his older employees about it, because he thinks the employee wouldn't be able to do the job.

Indirect discrimination

This can happen when an organisation puts a rule or a policy or a way of doing things in place which has a worse impact on someone with a protected characteristic than someone without one. For example, a local authority is planning to redevelop some of its housing. It decides to hold consultation events in the evening. Many of the female residents complain that they cannot attend these meetings because of childcare responsibilities.

Harassment

This means people cannot treat you in a way that violates your dignity, or creates a hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment. For example, a man with Down's syndrome is visiting a pub with friends. The bar staff make derogatory and offensive comments about him, which upset and offend him.

Victimisation

This means people cannot treat you unfairly if you are taking action under the Equality Act (like making a complaint of discrimination), or if you are supporting someone else who is doing so. For example, an employee makes a complaint of sexual harassment at work and is dismissed as a consequence.

Disability discrimination is when you are treated less well or put at a disadvantage for a reason that relates to your disability in one of the situations covered by the Equality Act.

The treatment could be a one-off action, the application of a rule or policy or the existence of physical or communication barriers which make accessing something difficult or impossible.

The discrimination does not have to be intentional to be unlawful.

Failure to make reasonable adjustments is where arrangements that disadvantage an individual because of a disability are not adjusted where it would be reasonable to do so. Once again, the college only has a duty to make adjustments if it knows, or could reasonably be expected to know about a person's disability, which could apply to an employee or a job applicant.
