1. Purpose of this policy

The purpose of this policy is to ensure all staff and students at Bird College:

- Are aware of what copyright is and why it is important
- Have a general awareness of what copying and scanning is permitted under UK law and the licences held by Bird College
- Can keep their copying and scanning legal
- Know where to find further information

It also aims to ensure that staff:

- Are aware of the basic legal requirements regarding the copying, scanning and distribution of items on reading lists or course packs
- Know how to request scanning of items for reading lists
- Know how to request training to allow them to scan items according to legal requirements

It also lays out the responsibilities of the Copyright Co-ordinator

2. What is copyright?

Copyright is legal protection for an author, composer, lyricist, or other creator which restricts the copying of an original work they have created.

Works can be written materials, dramatic works, music, computer programmes, websites, databases, sound recordings, films, broadcasts and published editions of a work.

Copyright of written, dramatic and musical works lasts for 70 years after the death of an author or other creator. Where there are multiple creators, such as a musical work with a composer and lyricist, copyright lasts for 70 years after the death of the last creator.

Copyright in the UK is governed by the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act (1988).

Copyright helps to ensure creators are fairly paid for their work, and to protect their reputation from being damaged by their work being distorted or abused.

3. Copyright compliance (keeping your copying legal)

All staff and students are expected to keep within copyright law and keep their copying legal. UK law restricts the amount of copyrighted material you can legally copy. You may legally make a print or electronic copy of a small extract of a copyrighted work without seeking permission from the rights holder, providing it does not harm the commercial or other interests of the author or copyright owner. This is known as 'Fair Dealing'. The key relevant examples of Fair Dealing are listed below. (Sections 3.1 – 3.4). Making copies of whole works, or substantial parts of copyrighted works, is not permitted except in very specific circumstances. (See 3.4 below).

3.1 Teaching: The copying of works in any medium is permitted if the use is solely to illustrate a point, it is not done for commercial purposes, it is accompanied by a sufficient acknowledgement, and the use is fair dealing.

3.2 Research or private study: Single copies of short extracts of a work may be made for personal study. You may not make multiple copies, and you may not make copies for someone else.

3.3 Criticism, quotation and review: Short quotes from copyright material may be included in assessed work provided it is properly acknowledged and referenced.

3.4 Disability: If Bird College owns a work that is inaccessible to a user because of a physical or mental impairment, that user is permitted to make, or have someone else make, an accessible copy of that work, provided that an accessible version is not commercially available. For example, it would be permitted to make a large print copy of a book for a student with a visual impairment, if a large print copy is not available to buy.

4. Copyright Licences held by Bird College

In addition to the rights mentioned in Section 3, Bird College holds two licences which permit additional copying.

The Copyright Co-ordinator will maintain a record of all copyright licences held by Bird College and provide information on how they apply to College activities.

Copies of licences are to be displayed at all photocopiers.

4.1 CLA Higher Education Licence: Bird College holds a licence with the CLA that, subject to terms and conditions, permits the copying and re-use of extracts of text and still images from printed books, journals and magazines, and from digital publications including some free-to-view and subscription websites. Full terms of the licence can be found here:

<https://www.cla.co.uk/higher-education-licence>

Under the terms of the licence from you may legally copy:

- One whole chapter from a book
- One whole article from a journal issue
- One whole scene from a play
- One short play (10 pages or less) from an anthology

Or 10% of the publication, whichever is the greater.

This applies when copying from both print and electronic versions of books and journals, and applies equally to photocopies, digital scans, and photos taken with a phone.

The CLA licence covers the photocopying and scanning from most, but not all, UK publications, and a number of US and international publishers. Certain categories of work, including printed music are not covered by the licence. A full list of excluded material can be found on the CLA website:

<https://cla.co.uk/excluded/he-print>

The licence covers the scanning of limited extracts of copyrighted material to be made available for teaching purposes to Bird College students. For full details, please see Section 5.

6. Digital copies of Course Texts

Digital copies of selected material from reading lists are available on a shared drive [E-resources] on all Bird College computers.

If staff would like material to be added to the shared drive, please contact the Copyright Co-ordinator with details of the material to be scanned and the course it is needed for.

Material is to be scanned and added to the shared drive by the Copyright Co-ordinator or other designated person only. If staff would like to become a designated person, please contact the Copyright Co-ordinator to arrange training in the procedure for making digital copies.

A copyright notice must be attached to each digital copy.

Digital copies must be from material owned by Bird College, alternatively copyright paid copies from the British Library may be purchased by the Copyright Co-ordinator.

Not all material is permitted to be distributed as a digital copy. Please speak to the Copyright Co-ordinator if you would like to copy material not covered by the licences listed in section 4.

It is not permitted for staff to make copies from their own personal material.

The copyright co-ordinator is to review all material on the shared drive at the end of each module and material no longer needed should be removed.

Where necessary, it is permitted to send a digital copy to a course user, by sending it to their secure college e-mail address as an attachment.

All new digital copies of course texts made in the period covering 1st June – 31st May must be reported annually to the CLA by the Copyright Co-ordinator by 15th June of the same year.
